Plaintiff Sheila Ross (“Plaintiff”), individually and on behalf of all other persons similarly situated, by her undersigned attorneys, for her complaint against defendants, alleges the following based upon personal knowledge as to herself and her own acts and information and belief as to all other matters, based upon, inter alia, the investigation conducted by and through her attorneys, which included, among other things, a review of the defendants’ public documents, conference calls, and announcements made by defendants, United States Securities and Exchange Commission (“SEC”) filings, wire and press releases published by and regarding Fiat Chrysler Automobiles N.V. (“Chrysler” or the “Company”), analysts’ reports and advisories about the Company, and information readily obtainable on the Internet. Plaintiff believes that substantial evidentiary support will exist for the allegations set forth herein after a reasonable opportunity for discovery.
NATURE OF THE ACTION

1. This is a class action on behalf of purchasers of Chrysler securities between October 13, 2014 and January 11, 2017, inclusive (the “Class Period”), seeking to pursue remedies under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (the “Exchange Act”).

2. Chrysler is an automotive group that designs, engineers, manufactures, distributes, and sells vehicles and components. The Company offers passenger cars, light trucks, and light commercial vehicles under brand names, including Chrysler, Dodge, Fiat, Jeep, and Ram. Chrysler provides retail and dealer financing, leasing, and rental services as well as engages in media and publishing business. The Company sells its products directly, or through distributors and dealers, in approximately 150 countries.

3. Chrysler was founded in October 2014 as the result of a merger that completed the integration of Fiat Group Automobiles (“Fiat”) and Chrysler LLC. Chrysler is incorporated in the Netherlands, with headquarters in London, United Kingdom. Its shares trade on the NYSE under the ticker symbol “FCAU.”

4. Throughout the Class Period, defendants made false and/or misleading statements as well as failed to disclose material adverse facts about the Company’s business, operations, and prospects. Specifically, defendants made false and/or misleading statements and/or failed to disclose that: (i) the Company’s slow completion rates for recalls, slow or inadequate notifications to regulators and consumers, and faulty approaches to addressing safety issues and improper actions by dealers were not in compliance with federal laws and regulations; (ii) the Company was illegally using hidden software to allow excess diesel emissions to go undetected; and (iii) as a result of the foregoing, defendants’ statements about Chrysler’s business, operations, and prospects were false and misleading and/or lacked a reasonable basis.
5. On Sunday, July 26, 2015, the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (“the NHTSA”) announced its imposition on the Company of a record $105 million fine in connection with the Company’s handling of 23 previous recalls affecting more than 11 million vehicles. The NHTSA penalties were tied to violations in an array of areas, including misleading regulators, inadequate repairs, and failure to alert affected car owners in a timely manner. The NHTSA stated, in part:

Fiat Chrysler’s pattern of poor performance put millions of its customers, and the driving public, at risk . . . . This action will provide relief to owners of defective vehicles, will help improve recall performance throughout the auto industry, and gives Fiat Chrysler the opportunity to embrace a proactive safety culture.

(Emphasis added.)

6. On this news, the Company’s stock fell $0.74, or roughly 4.9%, per share to close at $14.41 on July 27, 2015.

7. On October 28, 2015, Chrysler announced results for Q3 2015, informing investors that the Company recorded “a €761 million pre-tax charge for estimated future recall campaign costs for vehicles sold in prior periods in NAFTA.” The market immediately made the connection between the charge and the Company’s regulatory violations for failure to properly conduct recalls. Shortly after Chrysler’s announcement, Bloomberg reported: “The manufacturer set aside 761 million euros in the quarter for ‘estimated future recall campaign costs’ in North America, where U.S. regulators ordered it in July to buy back vehicles.”

(Emphasis in original.)

8. On this news, the Company’s stock fell $0.69, or roughly 4.7%, per share to close at $14.72 on October 28, 2015.
9. On December 9, 2015, after the close of trading, the market learned that NHTSA was fining Chrysler an additional $70 million for its failure to report incidents of death and injury as well as consumer complaints and warranty claims dating back to 2003. Chrysler admitted that the violations “are significant and date back to the inception of the early warning reporting requirements in 2003.”

10. On January 11, 2017, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (“EPA”) announced that the Company was illegally using hidden software to allow excess diesel emissions to go undetected. The EPA and California Air Resources Board stated that they believe the Company’s undeclared auxiliary emissions control software allowed vehicles to generate excess pollution in violation of the law and each agency issued notices of violation. “This is a clear and serious violation of the Clean Air Act,” said Cynthia Giles, assistant administrator for the EPA. (Emphasis added.)

11. On this news, the Company’s stock fell $1.35, or roughly 10.3%, per share to close at $9.95 on January 12, 2017.

12. As a result of defendants’ wrongful acts and omissions and the precipitous decline in the market value of the Company’s securities, Plaintiff and other Class members have suffered significant losses and damages.

54. On this news, the Company’s stock fell $0.69, or roughly 4.5%, per share to close at $14.72 on October 28, 2015.

55. The market immediately made the connection between the charge and the Company’s regulatory violations for failure to properly conduct recalls. Shortly after Chrysler’s announcement, Bloomberg reported: “The manufacturer set aside 761 million euros in the

(Emphasis added.)

58. On this news, the Company’s stock fell $1.35, or roughly 10.3%, per share to close at $9.95 on January 12, 2017.

59. As a result of defendants’ wrongful acts and omissions and the precipitous decline in the market value of the Company’s securities, Plaintiff and other Class members have suffered significant losses and damages.

PLAINTIFF’S CLASS ACTION ALLEGATIONS

60. Plaintiff brings this action as a class action pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23(a) and (b)(3) on behalf of a Class, consisting of all those who purchased or otherwise acquired Chrysler securities during the Class Period (the “Class”) and were damaged upon the revelation of the alleged corrective disclosures. Excluded from the Class are defendants herein; the officers and directors of the Company, at all relevant times; members of their immediate families and their legal representatives, heirs, successors, or assigns; and any entity in which defendants have or had a controlling interest.

61. The members of the Class are so numerous that joinder of all members is impracticable. Throughout the Class Period, Chrysler securities were actively traded on the NYSE. While the exact number of Class members is unknown to Plaintiff at this time and can be ascertained only through appropriate discovery, Plaintiff believes that there are hundreds or thousands of members in the proposed Class. Record owners and other members of the Class may be identified from records maintained by Chrysler or its transfer agent and may be notified of the pendency of this action by mail, using the form of notice similar to that customarily used in securities class actions.

62. Plaintiff’s claims are typical of the claims of the members of the Class as all members of the Class are similarly affected by defendants’ wrongful conduct in violation of federal law that is complained of herein.

63. Plaintiff will fairly and adequately protect the interests of the members of the Class and has retained counsel competent and experienced in class and securities litigation. Plaintiff has no interests antagonistic to or in conflict with those of the Class.

64. Common questions of law and fact exist as to all members of the Class and predominate over any questions solely affecting individual members of the Class. Among the questions of law and fact common to the Class are:

- whether the federal securities laws were violated by defendants’ acts as alleged herein;
- whether statements made by defendants to the investing public during the Class Period misrepresented material facts about the business, operations, and management of Chrysler;
• whether the Individual Defendants caused Chrysler to issue false and misleading financial statements during the Class Period;

• whether defendants acted knowingly or recklessly in issuing false and misleading financial statements;

• whether the prices of Chrysler securities during the Class Period were artificially inflated because of the defendants’ conduct complained of herein; and

• whether the members of the Class have sustained damages and, if so, what is the proper measure of damages.

65. A class action is superior to all other available methods for the fair and efficient adjudication of this controversy since joinder of all members is impracticable. Furthermore, as the damages suffered by individual Class members may be relatively small, the expense, and burden of individual litigation make it impossible for members of the Class to individually redress the wrongs done to them. There will be no difficulty in the management of this action as a class action.

66. Plaintiff will rely, in part, upon the presumption of reliance established by the fraud-on-the-market doctrine in that:

• defendants made public misrepresentations or failed to disclose material facts during the Class Period;

• the omissions and misrepresentations were material;

• Chrysler securities are traded in an efficient market;

• the Company’s shares were liquid and traded with moderate to heavy volume during the Class Period;

• the Company traded on the NYSE and was covered by multiple analysts;

• the misrepresentations and omissions alleged would tend to induce a reasonable investor to misjudge the value of the Company’s securities; and

• Plaintiff and members of the Class purchased, acquired, and/or sold Chrysler securities between the time the defendants failed to disclose or misrepresented material facts and the time the true facts were disclosed, without knowledge of the omitted or misrepresented facts.
Based upon the foregoing, Plaintiff and the members of the Class are entitled to a presumption of reliance upon the integrity of the market.

Alternatively, Plaintiff and the members of the Class are entitled to the presumption of reliance established by the Supreme Court in Affiliated Ute Citizens of the State of Utah v. United States, 406 U.S. 128, 92 S. Ct. 2430 (1972), as Defendants omitted material information in their Class Period statements in violation of a duty to disclose such information, as detailed above.

COUNT I

Against All Defendants for Violations of Section 10(b) and Rule 10b-5 Promulgated Thereunder

Plaintiff repeats and realleges each and every allegation contained above as if fully set forth herein.

This Count is asserted against defendants and is based upon Section 10(b) of the Exchange Act, 15 U.S.C. § 78j(b), and Rule 10b-5 promulgated thereunder by the SEC.

During the Class Period, defendants engaged in a plan, scheme, conspiracy, and course of conduct, pursuant to which they knowingly or recklessly engaged in acts, transactions, practices, and courses of business, which operated as a fraud and deceit upon Plaintiff and the other members of the Class; made various untrue statements of material facts; omitted to state material facts necessary in order to make the statements made, in light of the circumstances under which they were made, not misleading; and employed devices, schemes, and artifices to defraud in connection with the purchase and sale of securities. Such scheme was intended to, and, throughout the Class Period, did: (i) deceive the investing public, including Plaintiff and other Class members, as alleged herein; (ii) artificially inflate and maintain the market price of Chrysler securities; and (iii) cause Plaintiff and other members of the Class to purchase or otherwise acquire Chrysler securities and options at artificially inflated prices. In furtherance of this unlawful scheme, plan, and course of conduct, defendants, and each of them, took the actions set forth herein.

72. Pursuant to the above plan, scheme, conspiracy, and course of conduct, each of the defendants participated directly or indirectly in the preparation and/or issuance of the quarterly and annual reports, SEC filings, press releases, and other statements and documents described above, including statements made to securities analysts and the media that were designed to influence the market for Chrysler securities. Such reports, filings, releases, and statements were materially false and misleading in that they failed to disclose material adverse information and misrepresented the truth about Chrysler’s finances and business prospects.

73. By virtue of their positions at Chrysler, defendants had actual knowledge of the materially false and misleading statements and material omissions alleged herein and intended thereby to deceive Plaintiff and the other members of the Class, or, in the alternative, defendants acted with reckless disregard for the truth in that they failed or refused to ascertain and disclose such facts as would reveal the materially false and misleading nature of the statements made, although such facts were readily available to defendants. Said acts and omissions of defendants were committed willfully or with reckless disregard for the truth. In addition, each defendant knew or recklessly disregarded that material facts were being misrepresented or omitted as described above.

74. Defendants were personally motivated to make false statements and omit material information necessary to make the statements not misleading in order to personally benefit from the sale of Chrysler securities from their personal portfolios.
75. Information showing that defendants acted knowingly or with reckless disregard for the truth is peculiarly within defendants’ knowledge and control. As the senior managers and/or directors of Chrysler, the Individual Defendants had knowledge of the details of Chrysler’s internal affairs.

76. The Individual Defendants are liable both directly and indirectly for the wrongs complained of herein. Because of their positions of control and authority, the Individual Defendants were able to and did, directly or indirectly, control the content of the statements of Chrysler. As officers and/or directors of a publicly-held company, the Individual Defendants had a duty to disseminate timely, accurate, and truthful information with respect to Chrysler’s businesses, operations, future financial condition, and future prospects. As a result of the dissemination of the aforementioned false and misleading reports, releases and public statements, the market price of Chrysler securities was artificially inflated throughout the Class Period. In ignorance of the adverse facts concerning Chrysler’s business and financial condition, which were concealed by defendants, Plaintiff and the other members of the Class purchased or otherwise acquired Chrysler securities at artificially inflated prices and relied upon the price of the securities, the integrity of the market for the securities, and/or upon statements disseminated by defendants, and they were damaged thereby.

77. During the Class Period, Chrysler securities were traded on an active and efficient market. Plaintiff and the other members of the Class, relying on the materially false and misleading statements described herein, which the defendants made, issued or caused to be disseminated, or relying upon the integrity of the market, purchased or otherwise acquired shares of Chrysler securities at prices artificially inflated by defendants’ wrongful conduct. Had Plaintiff and the other members of the Class known the truth, they would not have purchased or otherwise acquired said securities, or they would not have purchased or otherwise acquired them at the inflated prices that were paid. At the time of the purchases and/or acquisitions by Plaintiff and the Class, the true value of Chrysler securities was substantially lower than the prices paid by Plaintiff and the other members of the Class. The market price of Chrysler securities declined sharply upon public disclosure of the facts alleged herein to the injury of Plaintiff and Class members.

78. By reason of the conduct alleged herein, defendants knowingly or recklessly, directly or indirectly, have violated Section 10(b) of the Exchange Act and Rule 10b-5 promulgated thereunder.

79. As a direct and proximate result of defendants’ wrongful conduct, Plaintiff and the other members of the Class suffered damages in connection with their respective purchases, acquisitions, and sales of the Company’s securities during the Class Period, upon the disclosure that the Company had been disseminating misrepresented financial statements to the investing public.

COUNT II

Violations of Section 20(a) of the Exchange Act Against the Individual Defendants

80. Plaintiff repeats and realleges each and every allegation contained in the foregoing paragraphs as if fully set forth herein.

81. During the Class Period, the Individual Defendants participated in the operation and management of Chrysler and conducted and participated, directly and indirectly, in the conduct of Chrysler’s business affairs. Because of their senior positions, they knew the adverse non-public information about Chrysler’s misstatement of income and expenses and false financial statements.
82. As officers and/or directors of a publicly owned company, the Individual Defendants had a duty to disseminate accurate and truthful information with respect to Chrysler’s financial condition and results of operations and to correct promptly any public statements issued by Chrysler, which had become materially false or misleading.

83. Because of their positions of control and authority as senior officers, the Individual Defendants were able to, and did, control the contents of the various reports, press releases, and public filings, which Chrysler disseminated in the marketplace during the Class Period concerning Chrysler’s results of operations. Throughout the Class Period, the Individual Defendants exercised their power and authority to cause Chrysler to engage in the wrongful acts complained of herein. The Individual Defendants, therefore, were “controlling persons” of Chrysler within the meaning of Section 20(a) of the Exchange Act. In this capacity, they participated in the unlawful conduct alleged, which artificially inflated the market price of Chrysler securities.

84. Each of the Individual Defendants, therefore, acted as a controlling person of Chrysler. By reason of their senior management positions and/or being directors of Chrysler, each of the Individual Defendants had the power to direct the actions of, and exercised the same to cause, Chrysler to engage in the unlawful acts and conduct complained of herein. Each of the Individual Defendants exercised control over the general operations of Chrysler and possessed the power to control the specific activities, which comprise the primary violations about which Plaintiff and the other members of the Class complain.

85. By reason of the above conduct, the Individual Defendants are liable pursuant to Section 20(a) of the Exchange Act for the violations committed by Chrysler.

WHEREFORE, Plaintiff demands judgment against defendants as follows:

A. Determining that the instant action may be maintained as a class action under Rule 23 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, and certifying Plaintiff as the Class representative;

C. Awarding Plaintiff and the other members of the Class prejudgment and post-judgment interest, as well as their reasonable attorneys’ fees, expert fees, and other costs; and

D. Awarding such other and further relief as this Court may deem just and proper.
